Instructor Bios

Gary Moskowitz writes and reports on the music industry for the Economist and has written about music, arts & culture for the New York Times, the Atlantic, San Francisco Weekly, San Francisco Magazine, the Village Voice, and other publications. He teaches journalism courses at San Francisco State University and California State University, East Bay. He is a former Mother Jones Magazine fellow, a former community news beat reporter for the Los Angeles Times, and a former journalism instructor at City University London. He is also a trumpet player and gigs regularly in the Bay Area with Radio Veloso. He is working on a nonfiction book about life in bands.

Sara Harrison is a freelance writer and journalist based in the San Francisco Bay Area. She is a former assistant editor for the politics section of the Los Angeles Review of Books and her work has been featured in Quartz, Civil Eats, and Zocalo Public Square. Sara is currently a graduate student at the UC Berkeley School of Journalism where she is a Dean’s Merit Fellow. She holds a B.A. in English from Carleton College.

Course Overview

This is a fast-paced, intensive introductory course that lays out basic journalism techniques and principles, introduces students to classic examples of journalism, gives them exposure to professional practitioners and newsmakers, instills ethical behavior, and provides practice in writing various types of journalistic stories. Designed both for those who are new to journalism and those with some journalism experience, this course will boost the skills of students no matter their level of expertise. There are no prerequisites for this course.

Each class will focus on key journalism concepts via news discussions, textbook readings, exercises, quizzes, and a “newsroom” approach to story development. Students will receive hands-on instruction in interviewing, reporting, writing leads, story structure, and working with speed and accuracy. Students will apply their learning by pitching, writing/reporting, editing, and revising several different types of stories. The course is modular, so you will build basic skills one at a time while working towards more ambitious projects.

This is a lively seminar-style class, so student participation in all discussions and classroom activity is vital. Students are expected to be involved, show improvement, and produce publishable journalistic content, and therefore will be edited much more closely than you may have experienced in other courses. Writing, editing, and rewriting is the way reporters learn.

Learning Objectives

We’ll learn about the nuts and bolts of reporting — interviewing, quoting and note-taking skills — and build on that with additional skills such as observing detail, drawing character, and scene-setting. Students will learn how to report on civic events and how to write about arts & culture, and they will learn about opinion writing, the profile piece, and the longer, more in-depth news feature story.

By the end of the course, students should fully understand all of these story types and be able to produce polished reporting and writing for publication. You will understand the basics of pitching a story, finding sources, conducting interviews, organizing your story, writing, rewriting, revising, and editing your draft.

Required Readings

- Additional readings provided via bCourses
- Associated Press Style Guide (digital subscription HERE)
- You are expected to read reliable newspaper, magazine, and web journalism stories every day, and be able to summarize, describe, and aggregate those articles via the class News Aggregator rubric

DAILY CLASSROOM AGENDA

Our daily work flow will include the following three elements:

Current events
Discussion of the news of the day via News Aggregations (using News Aggregator rubric)

Textbook
Readings + exercises + discussion + quizzes pulled from the assigned texts

Newsroom
Story pitches + Writing + Reporting + Editing + Revising

J100 NEWSROOM SCHEDULE
Our story production cycle begins on TUESDAYS and typically proceeds like this:

Tuesday: PITCH
Wednesday: STORY SKELETON
Thursday: ROUGH DRAFT
Monday: FINAL DRAFT

Standards and Evaluation

Expect your assignments to be rigorously edited by your instructor, GSI, and/or tutor.

We give the kind of editing you could expect from a professional workplace and newsroom (as well as from graduate school), and it’s designed to give you detailed feedback on what’s working and what isn’t, as well as give you some ideas about how to improve. Your effort, improvement over time, in-class participation and timely, thorough completion of the coursework will be considered in your overall assessment.

Grading Criteria for Reported Stories

Topics that are relevant, timely, and interesting
Clear, concise, compelling, attention-grabbing lede
Clear, concise, explanatory nut graf
ORIGINAL attributed quotes
Original reporting
Sourced facts
Explanatory paragraphs arranged in a logical sequence/order
Ideas/issues explained simply and clearly
Informed/critical analysis of a chosen topic/issue

</tr>
<tr>
<td>A (93-97%)</td>
<td>Very good work. Assignments exhibit original thinking, strong reporting and research, fact-checking and proofreading, limited grammar and style errors, and good journalistic style. Effective ledes &amp; nut grafs. Participates in class and in news discussions; meets most deadlines &amp; misses little class time. Shows some improvement over the course of the semester.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A- (90-92%)</td>
<td>Satisfactory work. Stories contain minimal reporting and lack original ideas or research, need more fact-checking and proofreading, and show little grasp of journalistic style. Weak ledes &amp; nut grafs. Consistent style and grammar errors. Some participation in class and news discussions; misses multiple deadlines &amp; more than ONE class session. Does little of the reading. Shows little improvement over the semester.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>B+ (87-89%)</td>
<td>Poor work. Stories contain little to no reporting, original ideas or research. Major style and grammar errors in all work. Work is sloppy, rushed or not factual. Little to no grasp of journalistic style. Almost never participates in class or news discussions; misses most deadlines &amp; more than TWO class sessions. Isn't doing the reading. Shows no improvement over the course of the semester.</td>

Deadlines

News Aggregations and Pitches must be uploaded to bCourses by 9:00 a.m. the day they are due. Final stories must be uploaded to bCourses by 11:00 a.m. on Tuesdays. Learning to meet deadlines is an important part of becoming a journalist, so we do not grant extensions for any reason other than illness or family emergencies.
Late stories will be marked down 10% (one letter grade) for each day they are late. Assignments that are more than three days late will not be accepted. Quizzes cannot be made up. Credit-only assignments (News Aggregations and Pitches) will not be accepted after the deadline.

Attendance Policy
Class starts on the hour. If you are late, it is your responsibility to check in with the GSI to ensure you are not marked absent. Please do not schedule interviews or reporting trips during class time. If you miss more than two class sessions, you will be in danger of failing the course.

If you must be absent because of an illness, travel or unavoidable personal appointment, please give the instructor or GSI notice as far in advance as possible. All your assignments will still be due on bCourses the day you are absent. It is your responsibility to catch up on anything you miss if you are absent. That means: checking bCourses, getting notes from a peer, or seeing the instructor/GSI during office hours.

Email, bCourses & Technology
Laptops and iPads are appropriate for taking notes, following along with course materials online, and engaging in peer workshopping, but should not be used for chatting, texting, email or using social media during class time. Laptops should be closed during guest speaker visits, unless you have an accommodation. Phones should be turned off.

We will use bCourses for a significant portion of this class. Students will submit all assignments via bCourses and will find supplemental readings, course updates, and announcements there. Students should check their UC Berkeley email daily for course updates or announcements. Students should use Google Docs for peer workshopping during newsroom time.

Academic Dishonesty and Plagiarism
Students will abide by the Student Code of Conduct. There is a zero tolerance policy for work that is submitted without proper attribution and that constitutes plagiarism. If students are unsure about the expectations regarding the Student Code of Conduct, please seek advice from the instructors.

Digital and paper trails are crucial elements of accountability in journalism. Students are expected to record all interviews with a digital recorder or their smartphone and keep an archive of them for the duration of the term. Students must also keep all reporting notes and completed assignments organized & accessible in Google Docs for the duration of the term. Students should be prepared to provide notes and/or recordings to instructors, if asked.

Disabled Student Services:
If you require an academic accommodations for this course, you must follow the intake and accommodation procedure to obtain a Letter of Accommodation.

Please contact Extension Disabled Student Services (EXDSS) at extension-dss@berkeley.edu or (510) 643-5732. If you already have a Letter of Accommodation from Extension Disabled Student Services for this course, please make an appointment with me to have a confidential discussion of what you will require for this course.
